Chabot College Program for Adult College Education (PACE) Accepting Applications for Summer and Fall 2020

(Hayward, CA) Chabot College's Program for Adult College Education, PACE, is a degree and transfer program for working adults. PACE is accepting applications NOW for Summer and Fall 2020, which begin in June and August, respectively. The deadline to apply for PACE admission is April 29, 2020.

PACE is a multi-semester learning community designed for people who work full-time, 9 a.m. - 5 p.m., and are pursuing completion of their freshman and sophomore years of college. PACE offers the chance for students to participate in a supportive network, taking classes together, and enhancing their academic success. Classes are held in the evening and online to fit working students' schedules. PACE classes are restricted to only PACE students for the first month of registration, ensuring registration in needed classes to complete both the Associate of Arts degree, and courses needed for transfer into 4-year colleges in three years or less. Many transfer colleges also have PACE or similar programs, including CSU-East Bay, to shorten full-time working adults' time to graduation.

"The PACE program has been great for me. The classes are tailored for working adults and it has worked out perfectly with my schedule. I am on track to transfer to California State University, East Bay to get my degree in Human Development. My professors have always been supportive and available when I've asked for help or advice from them." -Ysela, PACE student.

There are no additional fees for PACE classes; only regular Chabot College fees apply--allowing students to earn required college credits at a low community college cost. Classes include Anthropology, English, Health, History, Humanities, Geography, Math, Music, Psychology, and Sociology; with majors offered in Social Science, Liberal Arts, Behavioral Science, Human Development, and Business.
